Eric holds six higher education degrees:

- A.S., Administration of Justice, Moorpark College
- B.A., Psychology, California State University Northridge
- M.A., Marital & Family Therapy, Azusa Pacific University
- M.A., Sociology, University of California Davis
- M.S., Forensic Science, National University
- Ph.D., Criminology & Criminal Justice, UC Davis

He has many peer-reviewed publications, divided among the following fields:

- Psychology
- Forensic Science
- Criminology
- Criminal Justice/Law Enforcement
- Military Intelligence/Counterintelligence
- Indexing

His work experience includes:

- USMC Counterintelligence specialist
- Police officer
- Adjunct and Assistant Clinical Professor
- Forensic analyst
- Chancellor's liaison to public safety
- Public health research analyst
- Empirical researcher
- Peer reviewer for 11 journals

Eric developed a six step best practice model for the police investigation of domestic violence which, on average, triples rates of prosecution and doubles rates of conviction.¹ It was re-published as an FBI training bulletin.² He also published a best practice for the police organizational response to DV in the Wiley Handbook of Violence and Aggression.³

Eric is the author of the critically acclaimed investigative expose, "The Judicial War On Men". This unprecedented book is the result of a three year investigation into family law judicial training and judicial practice in California, revealing how family law judges are trained by feminist trainers to believe fake "facts" already proven false by empirical science. Official data shows judges are substantially biased against men for the same set of facts requesting a restraining order. Training videos show judges are told to issue "domestic violence restraining orders" even in the absence of crime, violence, threats, stalking, etc. They are taught to issue them when men state they will fight for custody of their children. The book reveals a system out of control. It is available in Kindle, Nook, hardback, large print editions at <https://dvfacts.com>.

The Judicial War On Men -- Professional Edition is a much expanded version of the basic book, with four additional chapters for lawyers, judges, academics, and individuals who want substantially more detailed information. The extra material includes:

- A detailed look at the substantially flawed methodology and mistakes of many DV "experts."
- The "Circle of Experts" phenomenon is described, accompanied by two flow charts showing its actual occurrence between DV "experts".
- A method for assessing research publications for empirical strength is provided. This is needed because holders of the juris doctorate lack empirical training and are at high risk of error when trying to distinguish good research from bad.

- Using this method, three amicus curiae and the case decision in U.S. v. Castleman (134 S.Ct. 1405, 2014) are subjected to empirical analysis. The results show many substantive and substantially mistaken claims about DV are made both by amici and Associate Justice Sotomayor.

Every law student, family law attorney, and family law judge should read this book because what they think they know about empiricism, and about domestic violence, is most likely very wrong. Available at <https://dvfacts.com>.

Eric is also the author of "Living & Working With Evil People: A Survival Guide". This book:

- Summarizes scientific knowledge about evil people, presenting it in clear, easy to understand language.
- Reveals the inner workings of the mind, heart, and soul of evil people so you can understand why they will always harm others, they cannot stop doing it, they cannot be redeemed, and thus you will never be safe around an evil person.
- Provides the Evil Person Identification Test (EPIT) to help you know who is evil.
- Teaches you strategies to avoid being harmed by evil people.

Living & Working With Evil People is available from Aequalitatem Publishing in Nook, Kindle, or softback editions (<https://aeqpub.com>).

PROLOGUE

I, like many men, want everyone to have an equal chance at everything. Not knowing much about feminism, I used to support it. After all, feminists just want women to have an equal chance at everything. Who wouldn't support that? This assumption about the benevolent nature of feminists made me vulnerable to severe abuse by feminists on two occasions.

In 2010 I was still a police officer when I began doctoral studies in Sociology department at the University of California, Davis (UCD). Imagine my surprise when, early in my first term, someone in a graduate seminar said "All men are violent, and women are only violent in self-defense." Believing facts are important in academic work, I responded, "That just isn't true. I have arrested plenty of women for domestic violence."

The graduate students around the table fell silent. Without knowing it, I had uttered a sacrilege. In a patriarchy one does not challenge feminist belief. To make my transgression exponentially worse, I embody everything feminists hate, i.e., I am a heterosexual White male who is both a military and law enforcement veteran, and I am tall, physically strong, confident, generally happy and enthusiastic, and unapologetically masculine.

Later that day my mentor professor (who is a famous criminologist) told me he heard about what happened. He warned me "If you want to survive here, don't challenge feminists again."

A week later I went to see another professor to talk about some advanced mathematics. When I walked in, she said "I hear you arrest victims of domestic violence." And so began a two year process wherein a cabal of feminists in the Sociology department tried to kick me out of the doctoral program by sabotaging my matriculation examination. Apparently they did not factor in my advanced investigative skills. I conducted a thorough investigation which included obtaining witness statements, and using the California Public Records Act to obtain more than 2,500 pages of email between the conspirators and others. When I filed this evidence with the proper high ranking authority, he made me a deal. I agreed to drop my grievance. In exchange he granted me a full scholarship to finish my Ph.D. (i.e., free tuition, free health care, and a salary), and he promised to end misuse of the matriculation examination by the Sociology department as a tool to eliminate graduate students whose political views, academic interpretations and interests, unwanted questions, and/or research topics they didn't like.

I do not believe anyone from the Sociology department at UCD will challenge the story I have told here, because they know I have almost 2,500 pages of email which I could release to rebut them. These email would not only confirm my story as accurate and true--they would also provide the names of the guilty conspirators which I have withheld from this telling.

I am not free to tell the second story.

These two encounters with toxic feminism helped prompt me to write the book "Living & Working With Evil People -- A Survival Guide" (2020, Aequalitatem Publishing, <https://aeqpub.com>).

I am now "woke" to the toxic nature of everyday feminism. It is not a benevolent effort to help women achieve equality--that is just a cover story. What lays beneath is ugly, as this book will show you.

This book does not examine the works of feminist authors; but rather, the words and beliefs of ordinary feminists, the foot soldiers of the feminist insurgency in America. These feminists are quoted extensively, letting their words reveal the toxic nature of feminism. It will be difficult for feminists to attack this work as inaccurate, when their own statements provide nearly all of its substantiation.

It is important to distinguish between individual feminists, and feminism as a leftist, revolutionary movement. The movement itself has become evil; however, just as good people can commit evil acts, so also good people can be feminist. This observed, if you call yourself feminist you cannot escape your share of the collective guilt due you for supporting a social movement whose evil acts harm innocent children, men, families, women, and the United States.

I suspect many "feminists" are actually feminist in name only (aka, a FINO), meaning they call themselves "feminist" for survival reasons, or to be popular and fit in, or because feminist platitudes sound lovely and they don't know better. I believe many FINO's are blissfully ignorant of the true goals, strategies, and actions of feminism. For FINO's, this book is a wake up call.

One of the reviewers of this book is a committed, activist feminist who I will call Ellen.⁴ She told me the content was "very depressing... I couldn't continue reading it." Ellen experienced existential angst because her core identity and way of thinking were substantially challenged by what she read here. Ellen was unwilling to enter the dark night of her soul (as Jung might describe it) wherein she reconsiders her devotion to feminism in light of the facts presented in this book. Instead, Ellen opted for what Heffernan calls "willful blindness... [which is a] mechanism to deny uncomfortable truths."⁵

It took the courage of a little child to call out, "The Emperor had no clothes on", something adults dared not do from fear of retribution.⁶ The tyranny of feminism will only be swept into the dust bin of history when we have the courage of a child to tell the truth, and the heart of a lion to take action. There is little doubt retribution will be visited upon those good people who push back against feminism and the matriarchy; however, it must be done. Like Nazi socialists in WWII, powerful and devoted feminists will fight viciously to preserve and advance the new society they have created.

Prayer is good, but it isn't enough. You must also take action.

CHAPTER ONE

My How You Have Changed: The Original Goals Of Feminism

"I think the girl who is able to earn her own living and pay her own way should be as happy as anybody on earth. The sense of independence and security is very sweet." (Susan B. Anthony) ⁷

Bah! Suffragettes. I've no time for suffragettes. They made the biggest mistake in history. They went for equality. They should have gone for power! (Sister Monica Joan) ⁸

Feminism has been hi-jacked by various other interests (Melissa McEwen) ⁹

The goal of early feminists were:

- To obtain voting rights
- To obtain property rights
- To obtain equal rights with regard to custody and control of their children

Early advocates for these rights didn't call themselves "feminist"; instead, they called themselves "suffragettes." ¹⁰ The founding mothers of the women's rights movement, including Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton would not recognize nor agree with what the women's rights movement has become today.

As this book will show, the goal of obtaining equal voting, land, and child custody rights has degenerated into a perverted war on children, men, the family, education, science, traditional religion, and the American way of life.

CHAPTER TWO

In Their Own Words: The Beliefs Of Everyday Feminists

If you aren't feminist, you're sexist (Gal Gadot) ¹¹

We need 'angry feminism' now more than ever (Marcie Bianco). ¹²

All men are rapists and should be put in prison then shot (Julie Bindel). ¹³

There are two sides to feminism: What is said in public, and what is concealed. What ordinary feminists think and believe--the part that is concealed--is important because they are the agents who are implementing the feminist revolution in America. Feminists take steps to conceal their true views, hiding behind lofty catch phrases, such as:

- Feminism is devoted to freedom from stereotypes
- Feminism is devoted to equality
- Feminism is devoted to equal pay for all
- Feminism wants an America where everyone feels welcome
- Feminism is the idea that men and women are equal
- Feminism seeks educational, professional, and social equality for everyone
- Feminism is the radical notion that women are people

If these catchy phrases described the totality of feminism, I would be a feminist. However, statements such as these are used to conceal true belief.

This chapter pulls back the curtain in order to reveal the toxic side of feminist belief, using the words of feminists to do so.

What Feminists Really Think & Believe

- I wrote the book "The End of Men", and yet they are still here (NPR host Hanna Rosin). ¹⁴
- The proportion of men must be reduced to and maintained at approximately 10% of the human race (Sally Miller Gearhart). ¹⁵
- Despite the modern PC sheen of "inclusivity" and "equality", marriage is still that same old patriarchal institution (Susan Cox). ¹⁶
- Man-hating is an honorable and viable political act (Robin Morgan). ¹⁷
- It is absolutely clear... the nuclear family must be destroyed (Linda Gordon). ¹⁸
- Smash the patriarchy (Alanna Vagianos). ¹⁹
- I'm done pretending men are safe--even my sons. No man is safe (Jody Allard). ²⁰
- Men are trash ... end of discussion (Kiri Rupiah). ²¹
- All men are capable of rape (Megan Carpentier). ²²
- Women, face it: Marriage can never be feminist... If you want to get married, just get on with it--but, please don't pretend that being a feminist changes its meaning (Julie Bindel). ²³
- If you're desperate to kill a relationship, lie (Martha Beck). ²⁴

- It seems odd that we continue to worry about the reputations of men who are accused of sexual wrong-doings (Jessica Valenti). ²⁵
- Feminism does not include a pro-life agenda. That's not how it works! The right to choose is a fundamental part of feminism (Roxane Gay). ²⁶
- Female accomplishment is not praised when the woman is a conservative (Alexandra Desanctis). ²⁷
- We need 'angry feminism' now more than ever (Marcie Bianco). ²⁸
- All men are rapists and should be put in prison then shot (Julie Bindel). ²⁹
- If you think men should help decide if a woman gets an abortion, just shut up. Women aren't children and don't need permission slips from their husbands or male partners... Her body, her choice. Period (Jessica Valenti). ³⁰
- All men are rapists and that's all they are. They rape us with their eyes, their laws and their codes (Marilyn French). ³¹

You Are Not A 'True Feminist' If...

Feminists attempt to gain power and control over other "feminists" who question mandatory belief. One method is the use of rejection, in the form of "You are not a true feminist because ____." Many examples are provided below.

- Taylor Swift is definitely not a true feminist role model... because she continues to use white feminism as a brand... she's only a feminist when it's convenient for her (Karen Nissim) ³²

- Kamala Harris isn't a true feminist. She has shown utter disregard for civil liberties and women's agency (Elizabeth Nolan Brown) ³³
- Hillary Clinton is not a feminist because of how she treated the women abused by her husband (Katherine Timpf) ³⁴
- You are not a true feminist if you're not a lesbian (Anonymized) ³⁵
- You can't wear sexy clothes and be a feminist (Anonymized) ³⁶
- There's a special place in hell for women who don't help each other! (Madeleine Albright) ³⁷
- Can a woman adopt her husband's name and relinquish the name she was born with and also be a true feminist? Maybe not. Maybe it's time for feminists to jettison that patriarchal tradition (Janet Eve Josselyn) ³⁸
- Men can't be feminists (Bisi Alimi) ³⁹
- If you do nothing you are a pretend feminist (Eleanor Robertson) ⁴⁰
- If a feminist man offers to pay for a feminist woman's meal, and if she lets him, they are both fake feminists (Aishwarya Dakhore) ⁴¹
- If a man calls himself a feminist and he won't prioritize his wife's sexual needs, he is a fake feminist (Elizabeth Arif-Fear) ⁴²
- If a man is a fake feminist, beat him up [but] maybe don't be too aggressive, because aggression invalidates feminism, right? (Tiffany Pham) ⁴³

- You are not a feminist if you do not place women's voices above those of men (Kristina Livingston) ⁴⁴
- You are a false feminist if you use feminist ideology as a way to shame other women. A false feminist is a straight up hater. This is just as bad as, if not worse than, a man shaming a woman (Ile-Ife Okantah) ⁴⁵

The Five Mandatory Dogma of Feminism

There are many disparate feminist viewpoints, as the above illustrates. There are also five mandatory dogma. No matter where in the big tent of feminism someone is found, if any of the five mandatory dogma are not believed, that individual is rejected by feminists as "not a feminist." The five mandatory dogma of feminism that all feminists must believe, are:

1. All males are rapists, or potential rapists. Females do not rape.⁴⁶
2. All males are violent, or potentially violent. Females are only violent in self-defense.⁴⁷
3. Females do not lie when they accuse a male of rape or domestic violence; therefore, reflexively, female accusers must always be believed.^{48, 49, 50}
4. Feminists must always take the side of a female who is in conflict with a male.^{51, 52}
5. All types of abortion must be legal.

What feminists say they believe, and what they do are very different things. The more you look at the everyday actions of feminists, the more you realize feminism, as it is lived out, is vicious, bigoted, immoral, unequal, and evil.

Discussion

Feminism isn't sedate, nor is it described by the lofty platitudes thrown about in public spaces. To be a feminist you must revile men, always reflexively side with women, and support abortion in any form. Feminism continually tacks further left, each successive wave more radical than the last. This, by definition, is a march to anarchy and social insanity.
